Soviet army retreat plan 'very clear'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz said Tuesday the Soviet Union has made a "very clear" commitment to withdraw its troops from Afghanistan, even though no firm timetable has been announced.

U.S. sources said the Red Army had begun preparations to leave. Soviet soldiers were sent to Afghanistan in December 1979 and an estimated 115,000 are in the country helping the Communist government fight Moslem insurgents.

North Atlantic Treaty Organization officials who attended a closed meeting with Shultz described him as hopeful of a Soviet withdrawal, but said he did not mention specific evidence that preparations were under way.

Shultz told reporters, when asked why he was optimistic about Soviet intentions: "Their statements are very clear and very public and unequivocal, unadorned."

A senior U.S. official, briefing reporters on condition of anonymity, said Soviet troops are taking up defensive positions and dependents are being sent home. He said this was "solid evidence" that the Soviet military intervention would end soon.

The official also said Soviet soldiers are not being replaced when they finish tours of duty. He spoke on Shultz's flight to Brussels from two days of talks in Moscow.

While Shultz was in Brussels, the Kremlin's Warsaw Pact colleagues were briefed on the Moscow talks by Eduard Shevardnadze, the Soviet foreign minister.

After a 2½-hour meeting with the NATO allies, Shultz flew to Washington to prepare for a trip Wednesday to the Middle East, where he will meet with Arab and Israeli leaders about efforts to revive peace negotiations.

USG sponsors mock election

by Catherine Hoehn
staff reporter

Although the Undergraduate Student Government has experienced some low voter turnouts in the past few years, members hope to turn that trend around, starting with today's Mock Presidential Elections.

Jim Vanzant, USG National, State and Community Affairs coordinator, said he hopes up to 2,000 students will vote today for the candidate whom they think will best serve as U.S. president. The purpose of the mock elections is two-fold, according to Vanzant.

"We want to familiarize students with the candidates and their positions before the Ohio Primary in May, and hopefully attract political candidates to the University," he said.

USG has circulated nearly 5,000 pamphlets around-campus, briefly summarizing the views of each Republican and Democratic candidate. There are 10 candidates left in the presidential race.

On the Democratic ticket six candidates remain:

□ Michael Dukakis, governor of Massachusetts, won the New Hampshire Democratic Primary Feb. 16.

□ Richard Gephardt, U.S. Congressman from Missouri, won the Iowa caucus Feb. 8.

□ Albert Gore is a U.S. senator from Tennessee.

□ Gary Hart, who was a Colorado senator for two terms, was defeated by Walter Mondale for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1984.

'Proper' behavior sought

by Amy Burkett
staff reporter

If Faculty Senate has its way, the only champagne bottles popping will be during its celebration following the reformation of the University's commencement exercises.

The bubbly will no longer be flowing at commencement, if Faculty Senate's newly-formed, 16-member committee is successful in its attempt to restore decorum to commencement.

Also, video cameras and flashing lights will be banished in Faculty Senate's "proper" commencement ceremonies.

The committee will consist of four faculty members, the presidents of Graduate Student Senate, Undergraduate Student Government, Panhellenic Council and Inter-Fraternity Council, the chair of the classified staff, the director of Campus Safety and Security, and the vice presidents of academic affairs, university relations, operations, and student affairs.

Ralph Wolfe, chair of Faculty Senate, said "The charge of the committee is to identify factors which tend to degrade orderliness, dignity and the academic atmosphere of commencement ceremonies."

Mearl Guthrie, the University's commencement marshal, who has attended 112 University commencements, said ceremonies are better than a few years ago.

"But they are not as good as they should be," Guthrie said. "It only takes a few people to create a problem and others jump on the bandwagon. I'm in charge of the ceremonies, but I'm not responsible to stop drinking and flashing lights."

"The majority of students act like ladies and gentlemen, but it is the small group that give us all a bad name. When you are in a group you tend to do what others in that group are doing," he said.

Wolfe said another problem experienced at commencement ceremonies is the graduates making so much noise that the speaker can not be heard.

"The major concern to faculty members is the lack of attention toward the speaker," he said.

Navy leader named

Ball steps into budget disputes as secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Tuesday picked a veteran Capitol Hill fighter, William Ball, to step into a simmering dispute over Pentagon budget cuts as his new secretary of the Navy.

The White House said the president will nominate Ball, a former Capitol Hill aide who has been chief lobbyist for both the State Department and the White House, to succeed James Webb, who resigned as Navy secretary on Monday with a blast at Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci.

"We look to Will Ball to continue working aggressively for a strong U.S. Navy," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, noting Webb's charge that Carlucci had needlessly sacrificed the administration's goal of a 600-ship fleet.

Fitzwater said the administration still seeks a 600-vessel

Navy, but now expects that the goal will be reached in fiscal year 1992, more than two years after Reagan leaves office, rather than in fiscal 1989 as originally planned.

Ball, 40, who came to Washington as an aide to former Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., has a reputation for skill at the behind-the-scenes compromises and maneuvers needed to steer legislation through Congress.

Webb, on the other hand, was more noted for outspoken advocacy of such controversial positions as his criticism of the service academies' admission of women and his ruling that the Navy would no longer accommodate officers who want to play professional sports.

Ball has been assistant to the president for legislative affairs since February 1986. Before that he had been assistant secretary of state for legislative and inter-governmental affairs. From 1981 to 1985 he was administrative assistant to then Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, serving also as chief clerk of the Senate Armed Services Committee in 1981. He was Talmadge's administrative assistant in 1978.

A native of South Carolina, he is a graduate of the Georgia Institute of Technology and was a regular officer in the Navy from 1969 to 1975.

As secretary of the Navy, Ball will oversee approximately 584,000 Navy personnel and 199,000 Marines.

He will be succeeded at the White House by a deputy, Alan Kranowicz, who has been primarily responsible for White House lobbying efforts in the House. Kranowicz served as chief of staff to former Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas, while Loeffler was in Congress.

BG to get new sorority

by Pamela Monastra
staff reporter

The Panhellenic Council has begun the selection process for a new sorority at the University, and the new sorority could colonize as early as next fall.

Chris Webb, former member of Panhel's Expansion Committee, said the committee has narrowed the new sorority to three possible sororities — Sigma Sigma Sigma, Sigma Kappa, and Alpha Omicron Pi.

Lori Allen, assistant Greek Life director and adviser to the sororities, said Panhellenic Council hopes to have a decision made by late April as to which of the three sororities will be invited to colonize with the University's Greek system.

Wayne Colvin, director of Greek Life, said there is the need for another sorority.

"Even though some say that we should wait until every chapter is above ceiling, which is 95 members, the amount of interest and the increasing enrollment, proves that there is the need for another house," Colvin said. "Our smallest chapter isn't even that small. It has a membership of 72 with 28 openings before reaching ceiling."

"But the discrepancy seems to lie on the fact that the average sorority chapter's membership

"There is easily enough people (for another sorority)."

--Wayne Colvin, director of Greek Life enrollment is 106, which is larger than its ever been," he said.

Colvin said the University's sororities can only accommodate 16 to 17 percent of the women students.

"There is easily enough people (for another sorority)," he said.

One voting delegate from each University sorority chapter was asked to attend the Expansion Committee meetings in order to help make the final decisions with their recommendations.

Webb said the meetings began by splitting up the women of the committee into three groups and within those three groups the members were asked to evaluate the folders of each of the three possible sororities to be colonized.

Winter Olympics are Soviet bloc party

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Flying Finn Matti Nykanen and Frank-Peter Roetsch of East Germany became double gold medalists Tuesday, and the Winter Olympics were a Soviet bloc party again.

The beer from Bonnie Blair's victory bash hadn't even gone flat before America's day of glory turned into another day of gold for the East.

Only the volatile Matti Nukes, as he is called, could slow down the Soviets.

Nykanen, who already won the 70-meter jump, added the 90-meter title with a hill-record jump of 118.5 meters in the first round and became the Games' first double jumping gold medalist since the event was split in 1964.

"I knew I'd won after the first jump," said Nykanen, who won the 90-meter jump at Sarajevo four years ago.

Roetsch won the 10-kilometer biathlon, staging the Games' first individual sweep of biathlon events, while Soviets Valeri Medvedtsev and Sergei Tchepikov finished 2-3. Roetsch won the 20-kilometer biathlon Saturday.

"After the relay, we'll drink much more beer," Roetsch said, looking forward to the prospect of a third gold medal. "Hopefully, we'll have a reason to celebrate."

The Soviets now have a leading 20 medals, East Germany 15. The two countries are tied with seven gold, and have won 35 of 84 medals offered so far.

More medals were bound to go East.

Speed skater Karen Kania of East Germany, a bronze medalist to Blair's gold in the 500 meters Monday night, was entered in the 3,000. One more medal, and she will become the most successful speed skater in Olympic thought I was skating behind a male skater."

New committee has difficult task

I imagine more than 2,000 students seated boy-girl, boy-girl, with the boys clad in black suits and shined "winged-tip" shoes and the girls wearing white cotton dresses and patent leather pumps. The speaker would be "Miss Manners," and each student would walk single-file behind their homeroom teacher to receive their diplomas.

Sound like your eighth-grade graduation? This silly, juvenile scene could actually take place at the next University commencement. Faculty Senate has formed a committee to put "decorum" back into graduation exercises. Unfortunately, it is easier said than done.

Although we agree commencement could be more formal, it would be awfully difficult to change the way students act at commencement. Not everyone acts "wild and crazy," but a few hooligans can make it seem like the whole group is out of control.

One of the recommendations is searching every student before they enter the stadium, however this is not the answer. If commencement becomes too strict, students are going to become resentful and probably act even rowdier.

The answer seems to rest with the students themselves. They need to realize there is a time to be wild and crazy, but also a time for decorum.

After four years or more of struggling to graduate, students deserve their right of free expression. If students want to celebrate on this occasion, they are going to celebrate.

Commencement should be entertaining and formal at the same time, but there has to be a happy medium where both the faculty and students are satisfied.

However, we would hate for the University's commencement to become more formal than eighth-grade graduation.

Put shoe on another foot

Bias seen by different eyes

By Diane Wonderly

I have always prided myself on being a fair minded, unbiased person.

Color made no difference to me, in my eyes everyone was equal. All colors of people were the same to me. I didn't have a prejudiced bone in my body, I thought, until I watched this film in one of my education classes about racism. It made me realize how prejudice and judgemental I can be about people in my own race.

It wasn't the usual black vs. white. This film dealt with an experiment a third grade teacher in Iowa did about 18 years ago. She walked into class one day and told her students that blue-eyed people were superior to brown-eyed people.

Every brown-eyed child in her class had to wear a collar so that they could be recognized as being different, they were not to talk with the blue-eyed children and they were not to drink from the water fountain, they had to use paper cups and keep the same cup to drink for the rest of the day.

The blue-eyed students took advantage of this situation too. None of the blue-eyed children talked to the brown-eyed children when just a few hours before they had all been best friends. The entire day was miserable for any child in that classroom that had brown eyes. The brown-eyed children felt like outcasts of society. It was awful to sit there and watch these students have to live through the day thinking they were less of a person simply because of their eye color.

I guess at one time or another we have all felt that way. I know I've felt that way and I also know I have made others feel that way by judging them not on the color of their eyes but by the way they dress, the way they talk or the way they happen to look at the moment I make the judgment.

The brown eyed children felt like outcasts...

The next day the third grade teacher walked in and told the class that she had made a mistake and that brown-eyed people were superior to blue-eyed people.

Now the shoe was on the other foot. The blue-eyed people felt what it was like to be made fun of and judged on the basis of something they had no control over.

I think that is what we all need to do the next time we judge someone. How would it feel to know that the person you are judging is doing the very same thing to you?

The shoe doesn't feel to good on the other foot, does it?

Cast a mock ballot today

By Beth Church

Gary Hart and his women. Pat Robertson and his evangelism. Paul Simon and his tailor.

All across America, reporters and voters alike are quick to criticize the Election '88 presidential candidates, both Republican and Democrat.

Maybe the problem with these men, as wise and experienced as they are, is that they are too OLD. I mean no disrespect, but perhaps someone younger would be more appropriate — someone college-aged.

A college student as president of the United States?

"The first thing they'd do is legalize marijuana, and then lower the drinking age," I can hear my mother saying.

Though some University students would support a platform such as this, there are many who would not. In fact, several students here at Bowling Green might even be knowledgeable and experienced enough to fill such a prominent position as this.

Unfortunately, one thing holds back that enterprising young American — the Constitution. Article II, Section I, prohibits any person under the age of 35 from becoming president. And very few traditional college students are over the age of 35.

But perhaps there is a place for college students in the world of politics, even if it isn't at the very top.

Though it may sound lame, voting is the best way to start out in politics. Taking time to learn about the various candidates, and understand the issues involved, has more advantages than just allowing you to make good conversation at cocktail parties. Voting is an act that involves intelligence and responsibility, giving the voter control over the government in a small, but very direct way.

Today the Undergraduate Student Government is giving all students a chance to do this, through Mock Presidential Elections. All Republican and Democratic candidates currently running will be on the ballot. Students can vote in their dorms, the Math-Science Building, University Hall or Jerome Library.

Wouldn't it be interesting to know which candidate is supported by Bowling Green students?

Unfortunately, this University is often stereotyped as "Conservative," frequently because of our Midwest location. Although many students and their parents don't mind this label, it is not very typical.

Beginning in the 1960s, colleges across the nation became known for rebellion and defiance of authority. New political and social ideas originated on college campuses. University students staged demonstrations and led rallies, actively participating in national politics. I believe that the political spark is still on campus, but needs to be set afire.

Perhaps there are more rebellious, dissenting feelings here at Bowling Green than the public is aware of. An event, such as these Mock Presidential Elections, would be an excellent way to publicize the actual political opinions of University students.

Think of the power that this knowledge of the results would give University students over the politicians. Perhaps, elected officials would recognize that college-age voters are part of this country too and are a force to be reckoned with. These candidates need to realize that University students do care about politics, and that their votes are potentially a large percentage of the entire population.

Only then will they realize that politics is not reserved for our grandfathers.

Church, a freshman journalism major from Perrysburg, is a staff reporter for The News.

Letters

Racist society not fault of frats and sororities

Mr. Ikomi, I am rather confused about your editorial in The BG News on Feb. 17, 1988. On the one hand you are "amused at the spirited attempt by some campus organizations to end racism by one social event."

Yet, you suggest that "fraternities and sororities should start taking students across racial lines." Don't you think that was the purpose of the St. Valentine's Day Massacre? Mr. Ikomi, did you attend the St. Valentine's Day Massacre? If you did you must admit that it was a big success and all those involved in organizing the event should be commended for their efforts and success.

I totally agree with your opinion that "racism runs deep in this country," but, I find it very hard to believe it is the fault of fraternities and sororities. I am a member of a predominantly white sorority and I feel that no black women or any women from other ethnic backgrounds have been discouraged from our rush. I will say that predominantly black and predominantly white sororities rush differently, and it is the choice of the person rushing to decide what she feels the most comfortable with. I am also a member of the Panhellenic Council and efforts are being made between the predominantly black and predominantly white sororities to educate one another about our beliefs. As far as fraternities are concerned, at the present time, one percent of black men on this campus are members of predominantly white fraternities. Now that may sound like a very low percentage, however, the total black population is only about two percent. Overall, the total number of men of various ethnic backgrounds in predominantly white fraternities is between 50 and 60 members. The Greek system makes up about 20 percent of the total population on this campus and I do agree that Greeks are a good place to start in the "massacre against racism." I would like to know, however, what about the other 80 percent of the campus population?

What is the relevance of Greeks who make contacts with other Greeks in large cities? If you were moving to another large city wouldn't you want to contact someone you know? For your information, people who join fraternities and sororities do not cut-off ties with the rest of the world! As a matter of fact, the majority of my friends are independent and I even live with three independents. Can you imagine that? Also, why did you go off on some tangent about South Africa when your article basically concentrated on fraternities and sororities and how they must work together to rid the country of racism?

Obviously, Mr. Ikomi, I do not consider this a "trivial issue" and Greeks should "take students across racial lines." The St. Valentine's Day Massacre is just the beginning of many social events to come. Mr. Ikomi, I could go on forever about your lack of knowledge concerning the positive efforts made by Greeks to encourage integration. However, I will stop and allow others to voice their opinions.

SIC SIC 'babes' sign offensive to women

I am addressing this letter to the members of SIC SIC. Throughout my years here at Bowling Green, I have more than once spotted one of their notorious signs and chuckled to myself. For the most part, their messages are witty and can serve as a breath of fresh air in a sometimes stale place. However, for a group that was created by Frank Prout with the intention of promoting school spirit throughout the student body, I am curious as to the purpose of the "We love BG Babes" sign placed on Hayes Hall on February 18 by members of this organization.

I have always felt this column to be one where a person can freely express a thought or opinion, no matter how big or small the issue one is addressing. The "We love BG Babes" sign is an issue worth commenting on because it is representative of an attitude that women have been trying to change for years. I expect equality, from the classroom to the workplace. This sign was sexist, and well, honestly just plain stupid. Sexual discrimination is hardly a new concept, and although some may fail to see the sexist nature of this sign, I saw it plain and clear.

As a female I will sadly never be able to totally eliminate the presence of sexual discrimination in my life. However, "There may be times when we are powerless to prevent injustice, but there must never be a time when we fail to protest."

I don't expect or want any lame apology from an adviser to this group, or any of its members for that matter. What I am really seeking is an environment in which people strive to eliminate, through education and awareness, discrimination of this nature.

Latin majors wanted

Program would like to increase students, staff

by Beth Church
staff reporter

Caught between a rock and a hard place, the University's Latin program would like to increase enrollment and staff, but has found that this might not be possible.

"It's a two-edged sword — if enrollment increased, there wouldn't be enough staff, and the only way to get more staff is to increase enrollment," said Diane Pretzer, chair of the Romance Languages Department.

Currently, there are only three University students who are Latin majors.

Pretzer said, although this number may seem low, it is slightly higher than in the last few years.

"I think people are becoming more aware of the need for a foreign language, and teachers to teach these languages," she said.

Pretzer said, however, the popularity of more modern foreign languages tends to decrease interest in Latin.

"Many students think that the modern languages will be more beneficial in business and travel," Pretzer said.

She said although 16 classes are offered by the department, only two professors, Richard Hebein and Boleslav Povsic, teach Latin.

"We always have a full section for our introductory courses, too," she said.

Pretzer said the department does engage in some public relations to attract potential Latin majors, but said too much publicity could cause problems.

With more practical majors as business or education available, though, many students may wonder why anyone would major in Latin.

Senior Walter Walker, a non-traditional student, is studying Latin in addition to working a full-time job, and sees no projected date for his graduation.

"Latin has always been a special interest for me. It's the history — the sense of origin that I love about it," he said.

Sophomore Kathryn Hicks, who has no immediate plans for her undergraduate degree, said she has a desire to study something society chooses to ignore at this time.

"I'd like to be able to read literature in its original form," Hicks said.

Hicks will eventually go to graduate school and then probably teach, "but for now I'm still learning," she said.

Neither Walker nor Hicks have a Latin background, but simply began taking introductory Latin classes because of the University's foreign language requirements.

The third Latin major, senior Janet Gibson, however, had taken high school Latin classes and said she enjoyed them.

"When I started as a freshman at the University, I really wanted to teach Latin, but recently I've been reconsidering it. In a few years, I may end up going back and get my (teaching) certificate," Gibson said.

This semester she has decided to commute to the Firelands branch campus, and is taking a variety of classes, but not Latin.

All three students said Povsic has been a great inspiration for them. Povsic has been a University professor for 25 years.

"His teaching has kept my interest in Latin alive," Walker said.

Dean likes dual role

by Laura Hardy
staff reporter

Louis Katzner wears two hats. However, neither is made of felt nor do they have a wide brim.

Katzner's figurative "hats" are actually the dual titles he holds. At the University, he is dean of the graduate college, as well as assistant vice president for research.

He said his two roles mean twice the responsibility, but as excitedly as he describes what each of his jobs entail, it is apparent he doesn't mind the extra work.

"Probably the most rewarding part of my job is seeing the graduate students both as a group and individually," Katzner said.

However, each of Katzner's jobs goes beyond working with graduate students.

In his role as assistant vice president for research, Katzner is primarily concerned with enhancing faculty research at the University. This involves placing graduate students to assist faculty in their research.

Other aspects of his job include signing research grant proposals, setting up workshops for University faculty and processing research and graduate student applications.

The responsibilities connected with being graduate dean keep

"Probably the most rewarding part of my job is seeing the graduate students both as a group and individually."

--Louis Katzner

Katzner equally busy.

He monitors graduate student progress and graduate program developments and standards within the graduate college. He does this by interacting closely with all the other graduate programs at the University.

"This year there are about 2,000 graduate students enrolled," Katzner said. "Among that number, about 850 receive some financial support in such forms as graduate and research assistants or administrative positions like resident hall advisers."

Graduate student enrollment and graduate student financial aid are two areas Katzner said he would like to see increased within the University graduate college. These aspects are among four major goals Katzner said he is attempting to achieve in the graduate college.

"It is very difficult to recruit graduate students without providing some kind of financial support," Katzner said.

Another of the graduate college's goals, Katzner said, is the implementation of four new graduate programs including a Ph.D. in applied philosophy, a master of technology, a Ph.D. in photochemical sciences and a master of science in Management Information Services.

"We ultimately hope to get campus and state approval for all four programs and then be able to recruit students for these programs," he said. "These are very important goals."

According to Katzner, the third goal is to increase support for faculty research.

In relation to research, Katzner said a fourth goal is to increase research awareness at the University.

If it appears that much emphasis is placed on research, Katzner is quick to provide a good reason for this.

"I think everyone would be in uniform agreement within the graduate college that research is the cornerstone of a graduate education," he said.

African group shares folklore

by Elizabeth Kimes
staff reporter

Although Africa is thousands of miles from America, authentic African culture is performed year-round only 100 miles away.

Tonight, that distance will be only inches from University students when the Omowale Cultural Society performs in the Lenhart Grand Ballroom.

The Detroit-based group, which strives to promote African folklore through traditional West African dancing, singing and music, was coordinated by the Offenbauer residential staff.

"We wanted to do something for Black History Month," Carmen Magaban, a resident adviser in Offenbauer, said. "But we wanted to avoid the political issues and bring culture in instead."

Under the direction of Sundiata Keita, the Omowale troupe performs on handmade instruments, such as xylophones, drums and shakers.

Dancers and singers, dressed in authentic garb, then relate the philosophy behind the particular demonstration.

Many of the Omowale Cultural Society members have traveled to West Africa to learn the culture firsthand.

The word Omowale is a reflection of the group's desire to bring the authenticity of the culture to America. The African meaning is "the child who has returned home."

Tonight's performance will be held at 8 p.m. and admission is free.

Pool shark returns to BGSU

by Elizabeth Kimes
staff reporter

He grasps the pool cue with the finesse and agility of a maestro with his conducting baton.

With one casual stroke he sends the multi-colored balls scurrying across the billiard table with a perfect break.

"If I lose, $50 to everyone here," Jack White, billiard and trick shot artist, announces to the crowd.

He then turns his attention to his next innocent victim.

"You realize you're not going to get a chance to shoot," he says.

Within five minutes, White clears the table and the audience in the Buckeye Room reaps no profit.

Jack White returned to the University this week to weave his pool shooting magic. This is his 14th trip here.

On Monday and Tuesday, he held pool clinics. He will compete Friday in the campus-wide pool tournament, which began Tuesday.

All events are scheduled for the Buckeye Room in the Union.

"I've been told by everyone that this is probably one of the most popular events on campus," White said. "The kids love it and that's why I do it."

According to White, he usually visits 200 colleges and universities a year, holding pool-shooting clinics and exhibitions.

Several of these institutions have merited White's expertise with honorary degrees, ranging from a doctorate in poolology from Notre Dame to a master's degree in billiard science from the University of Alabama.

Growing up in a family that was in the billiard supply business, White was exposed to the sport at a young age.

By the time he mastered pocket billiards, he was playing, and beating, the likes of Minnesota Fats and performing at the White House.

White said anyone can master the techniques involved in billiard and trick shooting.

"I have taught kids who were blind, and others with cerebral palsy and multiple sclerosis how to do tricks," White said.

"If you care for the individual you are teaching, and respect them, you can teach them anything."

BG News/Paul Vernon

Jack White says he's here not only to teach but to direct the men's and women's pool tournament. He will also be putting on a show Friday, playing both the men's and women's champions, followed by a trick-shot show performance.

Computer costs down

IBMs, Apples are sold through University service

by Tracy Richards

Although using University-owned computers is free for students, buying a computer has become cheaper and easier due to a new purchasing program on campus.

Microcomputer buying service offers both Apple Macintosh and IBM computers for about 40 percent less than the regular cost off campus, according to Don Schumacher, programmer/analyst of computer services. Macintosh Two and Apple Laser writers can also be ordered.

The University is now accepting payment for the computers with MasterCard, Visa, or American Express, he said. IBM purchases can also be made with these credit cards and eventually IBM's own credit card will be acceptable.

However, Dale Schroeder, director of Computing Information Services, said because of IBM's new policies, cash can no longer be used for an IBM purchase. A bank check or money order are required if credit cards are not being used, he said.

Only full-time students, faculty and staff members are eligible to buy Apples through this service, he said. An IBM purchaser may be a student with good standing at the University and faculty or staff.

If a person is interested in purchasing a computer from the University, Schroeder suggests these two steps be taken:

□ Attend an overview session to prove they are eligible to purchase a computer through the University, to decide when to expect delivery, and other general information on caring and operating the computer.

□ Schedule a sales meeting at the Microcomputer Center so exact prices can be determined and order forms can be filled out.

Schumacher said students benefit when buying a computer through the campus service because if the computer breaks down, they do not have to travel off campus to get it repaired.

Another attractive feature to owning a computer is avoiding the lines which sometimes crop up in campus computer labs.

"The most common problem students face is finding a computer to work on, especially towards the end of the semester," said Myron Hayden, student supervisor at the Technical Building Computer Lab. Not including the resident halls, there are over 200 computers on campus, according to Patty Tussing, computer operations supervisor.

Even with Thanksgiving break, the lab's busiest month in the fall semester is November, she said. Approximately 6,400 students used the library computer lab and 5,731 used the computer lab at the Union that month last year.

"The number of students using the computer labs increases every month," Tussing said.

Guthrie said he believes disorderliness is a large part of the graduates' conduct during the ceremonies.

"Graduates do not stay seated during the ceremonies. I've seen them pop champagne corks at the speaker," he said.

Phil Mason, executive assistant to the president, expressed the same concern about paying attention to the speaker.

"Commencement should be a serious ceremony. It ought to be a blend of appreciation of accomplishment, what's ahead and celebration," he said.

"It is a shame when graduates don't have enough respect for the speaker to pay attention while he delivers his address. I find that most unfortunate," Mason said.

There are many examples of shenanigans that take place at commencement.

According to Guthrie, the most frequent occurrence at commencement is the decorating of the graduation caps.

The caps are decorated in a variety of ways. Some are strung with lights and fake rabbits, while others hold personal messages like "Thanks Mom and Dad," Guthrie said.

The most striking mortar board sign to Wolfe was one that said, "Better late than never."

"The misspelling error was an embarrassment to the student and the University," Wolfe said.

University graduate Mark Emblidge greeted 1987 spring commencement guest, Fred Rogers, with enthusiastic support. Faculty Senate has formed a committee to add more decorum to commencement. The group would like to see the rowdiness taken out of the ceremony.

Guthrie said students also do the wave.

"This made people very unhappy," he said.

However, Guthrie has his own solution to the problem.

"We could check the graduates at the door and remove any inappropriate substances. This might be the only possible solution, but the best solution would be for the graduates to take control and check themselves," he said.

The committee will report its suggestions for revisions to the Faculty Senate Executive Committee on March 31.

Faculty Senate is not the only group trying to correct behavior at graduation. University President Paul Olschcamp sends out letters annually to graduating seniors urging them to act responsibly at commencement.

The letter states that "special precautions will be taken to ensure that alcohol is not brought into the commencement setting, and seating will be arranged so that small numbers of celebrants cannot disrupt the proceedings."

□ Jesse Jackson, former president of Operation P.U.S.H., has never held a public office.

□ Paul Simon, is a U.S. senator from Illinois.

Just four candidates are left on the Republican ticket:

□ George Bush, currently U.S. Vice President, recently won the New Hampshire Republican primary.

□ Robert Dole, from Kansas, has been U.S. senator since 1969, and is former chair of the Republican National Committee. He won the Iowa caucus.

□ Jack Kemp, U.S. Congressman from New York since the early 1970's, is a former quarterback from the Buffalo Bills.

□ Pat Robertson from Virginia, founder of the Christian Broadcasting Network and the C.B.N. University, is a former television evangelist.

Robertson, like Jackson, has never held public office.

Voting booths for the mock elections are set up at various locations on campus. Elections will be held in University Hall and Math Science Building from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; in the Jerome Library 5 p.m. to 10 p.m.; and in most residence hall dining rooms, as well as next to the information desks at Prout Hall, Rodgers Quadrangle and Kohl Hall, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Kappa and Alpha Omicron Pi, were chosen as possibilities for the University.

Based on further evaluations, two out of the three sororities will be chosen to come to the University and make a presentation to the Panhellenic Council.

Panhellenic Council will ask one of the sororities to colonize at the University, Webb said.

Marine's captors caught

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The main Shiite Moslem militia has caught three gunmen who kidnapped a U.S. Marine officer serving with the United Nations, but not the mastermind of the abduction, security sources said Tuesday.

The United Nations has approached Iran, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization, which have influence in Lebanon, seeking help in the search for Lt. Col. William Higgins, U.N. spokesman Mario Zamorano said in New York.

Zamorano said the contacts were made by Undersecretary-General Marrack Goulding, who was in the region when Higgins was kidnapped last Wednesday. The 43-year-old Marine from Danville, Ky., is a decorated Vietnam veteran and was an aide to former U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

The relatively moderate Shiite militia Amal has seized 42 suspects in a clampdown on Shiite fundamentalists since Higgins was abducted near Tyre, 50 miles south of Beirut, an Amal spokesman said on condition of anonymity.

Amal has been the dominant force in predominantly Shiite south Lebanon but is being challenged by Hezbollah, which is loyal to Iran and believed to be an umbrella for Shiite radical groups that hold most of the 25 foreigners missing in Lebanon.

Nine Americans now are among the missing foreigners. The hostage held longest is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, kidnapped March 16, 1985.

A security source, who also would not let his name be used, said those rounded up by Amal include "the three gunmen who seized Col. Higgins and forced him into the first getaway car."

Three other Shiites held by Amal monitored Higgins' movements before his abduction, sources reported.

According to the reports, Amal questioned the suspects but found they did not know the whereabouts of Higgins or the man who planned the operation.

Landfill liability determined

Chemical company must pay Love Canal clean up costs

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A federal judge ruled Tuesday that Occidental Chemical Corp. is liable for the cost — estimated at more than $250 million — of cleaning up the Love Canal landfill that became synonymous with environmental disaster.

After nine years of deliberations, U.S. District Judge John Curtin said Occidental produced the wastes that created the disaster and stored them in a way that would eventually result in toxic leakage.

"It is beyond dispute that OCC's disposal practices were at least partially responsible for the release, or threatened release, of the chemicals from the Love Canal landfill," Curtin said.

Curtin said Occidental's liability would be determined in further court proceedings involving claims against Occidental by other parties, including the state of New York and some residents. Previous estimates have ranged above $250 million.

Occidental spokesman James Green said the company was disappointed by the ruling and would not comment on its plans until its attorneys had a chance to study Curtin's 36-page decision.

"At last somebody has been assigned some responsibility," said Sister Marjeen Hoffmann, director of the Ecumenical Task Force which has been an advocate for people in the Love Canal neighborhood.

Curtin's ruling upholds the federal Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980, which the judge said was designed to compel the waste disposal industry "to correct its past mistakes and to provide a solution for the dangers posed by inactive abandoned waste sites."

News Briefs

Cincinnati AIDS cases up

CINCINNATI (AP) — The number of reported acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) cases increased nearly threefold last year in the Cincinnati area, exceeding predictions by health authorities about the spread of the fatal disease, health officials say.

Eighty-two new cases of AIDS were handled by area hospitals in 1987, compared with 29 new cases the previous year, according to a report made available Tuesday to the Cincinnati Board of Health. The Cincinnati Health Department had predicted the number of new AIDS cases would double last year.

Federal health officials have said they expect a sharp increase nationwide in the number of reported AIDS cases in coming years, as people who have already been infected by the AIDS virus begin to see its symptoms develop.

AIDS cripples the body's immune system, leaving the victim vulnerable to infections and other diseases, including cancers.

Bullet cures man's illness

NEW YORK (AP) — A depressed young man unable to control a compulsion to keep washing his hands put a .22-caliber rifle in his mouth, pulled the trigger, and survived with his compulsion cured.

"His I.Q. did not change. There was no change personally. He did not become an automaton. His symptoms are gone," said his doctor, Leslie Solyom, a psychiatrist at Shaughnessy Hospital in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

The man, identified only as George, suffered from the psychiatric ailment known as obsessive-compulsive disorder. It is characterized by recurrent, unpleasant thoughts or impulses (obsessions), or, as in George's case, by repetitive behavior (compulsions) performed according to well-defined rules.

George washed his hands as often as 50 times a day. He would take four-hour showers, and he would check and re-check to see whether doors and windows were locked.

Bowling Green's Joe Gregory calls out a play during a recent game. The Falcons (5-7 in the Mid-American Conference, 10-13 overall) have won three in a row, including two on the road, going into tonight's contest at Ohio University. Game-time is 8 p.m.

Mancini-Camacho fight announced

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini will come out of retirement to fight Hector "Macho" Camacho in May for a lot of money, but with no title at stake, co-promoter Dennis Rappaport said yesterday.

Mancini, a former World Boxing Association lightweight champion, will get $2.25 million plus training expenses while Camacho, a former World Boxing Council super featherweight champion who recently relinquished the WBC lightweight title, will get $1.3 million plus training expenses, Rappaport said.

Camacho faces gun and drug possession charges in Clewiston, Fla., but Rappaport said, "There won't be any legal impediment to the fight."

Rappaport, who will promote with Gerry Cooney, the former heavyweight contender he once managed, said the Mancini sign a contract Feb. 6 and that Camacho signed Monday.

BG meets OU on way to tourney

Injured Walton's Bobcats have lost four games in a row

by Andy Woodard
assistant sports editor

Every remaining game in the women's Mid-American Conference season is critical because all nine conference teams still have a chance at a possible post-season tournament berth.

However, no one game may be more important than tonight's Bowling Green — Ohio University contest in Athens.

The Bobcats, 9-14 overall, 4-8 in the MAC, have lost four in a row by a total of 15 points, including a one-point decision at Miami (58-57) last week.

OU, currently in the seventh and last playoff position, is only one and a half games ahead of Ball State and two games in front of last-place Eastern Michigan.

On the other hand, the Falcons (18-5, 10-2) have won eight of their last nine, including an 85-64 non-conference romp over Cleveland State Saturday. They have clinched a tournament berth, but head coach Fran Voll said nothing is set.

"It's almost like we're in a short season right now," Voll said. "We still control our destiny. But at the end there's some teams, and I know Ohio is one of them, who are fighting to stay in the race. It doesn't appear that too many more teams can afford a loss."

The Bobcats could have continued problems as senior forward Kim Walton has been hampered by injury and is not listed in the starting line-up. Walton is the team's leader in scoring (16.0), rebounding (8.5), field goal percentage (50.2) and steals (2.3). Voll said any contribution she makes could hurt his squad.

"She's a person who's been tested in a lot of games experience-wise," he said. "She's a leader. She could step up and cause some trouble for us."

With Walton's absence, OU is scheduled to start one senior, two sophomores and two freshmen. Freshman forward Kristen Holt is scoring 13.1 points per game, second only to Walton. Off the bench is freshman guard Laura Reding, who is averaging 11.5 ppg.

"Kristen is probably one of the better freshmen in our conference," Voll said. "She's got a lot of weight to carry because she's there leading scorer (in the starting line-up). And then there's Laura Reding, who didn't play too much against us last time. She was limited in time for the points she scored against us."

BG took early control of the squads' first meeting last month at Anderson Arena and had a substantial lead in the second half when Voll inserted most of his subs. Voll said his bench was to key to the 80-64 win.

"We played well against them here; two games after our Western (Michigan home) loss," he said. "Our depth was a key at that time."

The Falcons are led by junior forward Jackie Motycka, who is averaging 20.0 points per game — second in the MAC. Center Angie Bonner is second with a 12.8 average.

Bonner leads the MAC in field goal percentage (58.8) and is fourth in blocked shots (1.52). Point guard Paulette Backstrom leads the conference in assists (5.7).

OU head coach Amy Prichard was in practice and unavailable for comment.

Tip-off is at 5:45 p.m.

Ruggers victorious

The Bowling Green women's club rugby team defeated the Pittsburgh Angels 4-0 in overtime Saturday to win the 7's Snow Tournament championship at Hiram College.

The Falcons won the game when Deb Weaver scored six minutes into the extra session.

In the semi-finals, BG defeated Hiram 12-8 on Shelly Rohrer's try with 30 seconds remaining, while the Falcons crushed Oberlin 24-0 in the first round.

BG, 3-0 on the season, next practices this Friday at 6:30 p.m. in the Eppler South Gym. The club said new members are still welcome.

Reds' star Davis content

PLANT CITY, Fla. (AP) — Cincinnati Reds outfielder Eric Davis, one of the National League's most productive players last season, says he has put aside his off-season contract dispute with the team.

Davis reported to the Reds' spring training camp Sunday, three days before the full squad's reporting date. He worked out Monday, chasing fly balls and taking batting practice from balls thrown by hitting coach Tony Perez.

Davis, 25, avoided a salary arbitration hearing when he agreed to sign a 1988 contract this month for $899,000. The Reds added five incentives that could push him over the $1 million mark.

The Reds originally offered Davis $750,000, while the center fielder asked for $1.05 million. He said he was happy that both sides agreed to compromise.

"I was pleased," Davis said. "They came up and we came down and that showed a lot of respect on both sides. Everyone came out happy with it."

Asked if he reached the settlement because of the trend this season toward team owners winning most arbitration cases, Davis shook his head.

"My No. 1 thing was to try to reach an agreement with Cincinnati, not with what other clubs were doing," he said.

Emerson, Polillo disproving "jinx" theory

Polillo

BG News/Mark Thalman

by Al Franco
sports reporter

Forget about Mark "The Bird" Fidrych and "Super Joe" Charboneau — the "sophomore jinx" is fictitious. It's a myth; it's history; it simply does not apply.

Western Michigan's Paul Polillo and Bowling Green's Nelson Emerson have disproved the "sophomore jinx." In fact, these two have left all those advocates of the theory scratching their heads.

They mean different things to their team. Paul, for us, is like a quarterback on offense and does an excellent job. Emerson is the gunner, and that seems to be the difference between the two.

--Bill Wilkinson, WMU head coach

In their second seasons, the pair are the most prolific scorers in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association ranking one and two in both overall and league scoring statistics.

Overall, Polillo has 19 goals and 50 assists for 69 points in 35 games, while Emerson is three points back posting 26 goals and 41 assists for 66 points also appearing in 35 games. In the 30 league games, Emerson has the edge with 24-36-60, while Polillo has 16-41-57.

In head-to-head match-ups, Emerson outscored Polillo this past weekend by a margin of seven to four, while in the first series at Kalamazoo, Mich. Polillo took the honors, six to four.

When viewing the statistics, Emerson seems to be a more dominant goal-scorer, while Polillo is more of the playmaker with 50 assists.

"They mean different things to their team," WMU head coach Bill Wilkinson said. "Paul, for us, is like a quarterback on offense and does an excellent job. Emerson is the gunner, and that seems to be the difference between the two."

Whatever the case, the result of their time on the ice is usually points on the board for their respective teams. And for the spectators on hand at the BG Ice Arena last Saturday, they got a

Emerson

Polillo a playmaker?

In the third period with WMU mounting a come-back, Polillo positions himself along the right boards. He stick-handles the puck nervously as BG defenders come to sweep it away.

One of his wingers skates by, but Polillo holds the puck. There goes another and yet another, he still holds the puck. The fourth player goes by and Polillo dishes him the puck casually, and the winger redirects the pass by BG goalie Paul Connell for the goal.

"You saw the pass that he (Polillo) fed to Hoover late in the game for a goal," Wilkinson said after Saturday's 8-7 loss. "Three guys go by, and he feeds the fourth guy coming; he's very patient with the puck. (Where as,) Emerson is maybe more dangerous when he has the puck scoring because he can go end to end with it."

Both players had exceptional freshman campaigns. Polillo was the top scoring rookie in the CCHA with 66 points. Emerson

Szekely stays at home

Meets up with former Alabama recruiter Gordon

by Mark Huntebrinker
sports reporter

When Andrea Szekely chose to attend Bowling Green over the University of Alabama three years ago, she figured she had heard the last of Alabama and a UA assistant swim coach named Brian Gordon.

However, the two would meet again as Gordon was named BG's head swim coach two weeks prior to this season's opener. Gordon's loss three years ago has now turned into his gain as the women's swimming and diving teams ready themselves to host the Mid-American Conference Championships starting tomorrow at Cooper Pool.

Two major factors kept the Bowling Green native and two-time high school All-American from heading south.

"I thought Alabama was pretty far away to go to school," Szekely said. "I also liked the special education program that Bowling Green has." Since Szekely's arrival to the Falcon swimming program, she has etched her name into the BG and MAC record books on several occasions.

As a freshman she took the MAC by surprise by earning titles in the 200 yard freestyle, 200 intermediate, and the 100 and 200 fly events at the MAC championships.

In her sophomore season she placed first in both the 200 intermediate and as a member of the 800 freestyle relay team that set a conference record at the conference's championships.

This season she set a MAC season record in the 200 IM, one of her four individual school records she has set in her career. She has also been part of four relay teams that have set school records.

Szekely, a junior, was swimming her way to success before her arrival on the BG campus. Including her two-time high school All-American honors, she was the National Junior Olympic champion in the butterfly twice, and swam in the 1985 National Sports Festival.

Despite her continued success on the collegiate level, the transition from high school to college swimming has not been as easy as all the accomplishments indicate.

"In high school it was much easier to concentrate on swimming," she said. "The training is not that much harder in college, but there are a lot more distractions and you really have to get yourself motivated."

With all the accomplishments and laurels behind her, Szekely enters tomorrow's action with some lofty goals.

"I would like to make the NCAA in individual and relay events," she said. "But the MAC's are our biggest concern right now. Miami is a really good team and OU surprised us during the season. It should be a good three team race."

Gordon may have known a little about what to expect from Szekely when he arrived this fall, but he now knows the whole story.

"Obviously, I knew of Andrea's abilities coming in because at Alabama we watched how recruits we did not get were doing," he said. "This season Andrea has provided us with great inspiration for the team individually and in her relay events."

Sophomores

finished second in the freshmen race with 61 points, but captured the CCHA Rookie of the Year Award.

Emerson said the presence of each other was felt even before attending college in the States.

"He lives about 20 minutes from me back home," Emerson said. "I see him over the summer and play hockey together some. We've known each other and played each other since we were younger."

Both are Ontario natives as Emerson hails from Simcoe, while Polillo is from Brantford. It would be difficult for Polillo to become pride and joy of Brantford because a guy named Wayne Gretzky also resides there.

The locale may have an affect on the way they position themselves on the ice, as both feel comfortable behind the net, a trait which was the advent of the other Brantford product.

"I think it (going behind the net) all started with Gretzky," Emerson said. "When you stay back there, the defense doesn't know what to do. Paul sets up back there, too. I feel more comfortable because you can see everybody."

The positioning behind the net comes from the experience of being in the league for two years and being comfortable on the ice. So, what about this "sophomore jinx?"

"Nelson is having what we think is a better year than last year," BG head coach Jerry York said. "When you consider being voted by the coaches around the conference as the league's top rookie, that's quite an accomplishment."

The theory is shot down again. Is there a competition for the two who have been neck and neck in the scoring race the past two seasons?

"I don't really look for him in Bowling Green's Andrea Szekely competes during a recent meet. She has had an outstanding career since coming to BG.

Hiram wins

HIRAM (AP) — Kenn Greaver scored 22 points and collected 16 rebounds and Kevin Kovach added 20 points to lift Hiram to a 76-53 victory over Thiel in a Presidents' Athletic Conference game yesterday.

Hiram improved its season record to 3-20.

the statistics," Polillo said. "He's a great player, but I worry about my own game. I can't do anything about what he does from week-to-week."

And why worry when you have the upper hand with one week remaining in the regular season and your opponent is Miami, a team the Bronco's outscored 14-4 in their first meeting.

"He's first in overall scoring, you have to notice him," Emerson said.
